Fears were expressed that silence from then on may have meant the crippled aircraft, struggling against powerful headwinds and with her power damaged, may have been forced down.

It was believed that last message was sent from the general vicinity of 81 degrees north and 17 degrees east.

Therefore Moy, experienced in finding his way about the unmarked northern territory, chose that vicinity to start his relief expedition. He plans to comb the region between 17 and 28 degrees east longitude provided such a search is possible.

Curtis To Fight For Adjournment Of Congress

FLOOR LEADER OF G. O. P. SAYS HE WILL WIN

And In That Case Senate Will Probably Have All-Night Session

(BULLETIN)

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Beaten by two votes in an effort to hold congress in session another week, Senator Hiram Johnson today conceded defeat of his Boulder Dam bill at this session and sought to have it made the unfinished business when congress meets next December.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Senator Curtis, Republican floor leader marshalled his followers today to defeat the insurrection against his plan of adjourning congress tomorrow.

Curtis said he believed he has sufficient senatorial votes to adopt immediately the adjournment resolution, already adopted by the house.

If Curtis wins, the senate will probably be kept in continuous session over night from 11 a. m. today until 5 p. m. tomorrow, the hour which his resolution would set for final adjournment.

Despite Curtis' optimism, Senator Hiram Johnson, leader of the opposition, made plans to fight for a vote on his two amendments to the adjournment resolution; the first would provide adjournment June 5 and the second June 9.

Johnson wants the additional time to get action on his Boulder Canyon dam bill which now has been pending nearly two years. He is faced with a vigorous filibuster led by Senator Ashurst, Dem., Ariz.

During the chaos over other matters last week, Ashurst and his followers gathered strength for their last stand. Johnson knows Ashurst and his aides can easily talk until 5 p. m. tomorrow. But if Johnson can delay adjournment for a week, he thinks the filibusters may become exhausted.

Two other matters are involved in the fight. Chairman Hale of the naval affairs committee wants senate action on the Houg bill to authorize construction of 15 new 10,000-ton cruisers and another aircraft carrier. Farm bloc senators are filibustering against that bill and will not permit a vote if they can prevent. Chairman David A. Reed of the military affairs committee is seeking a vote on his bill to promote army aviation. Senator Black, Dem., Ala., and others are fighting that measure.

All other important bills are out of the way. The appropriation bills among these, have been passed.

Johnson is unwilling to give way either to Hale or Reed, for fear of jeopardizing chances of the Boulder dam bill. Johnson wants at the least to keep his measure the unfinished business until the final moment of the session. Then when congress reconvenes in December it will still be unfinished business and he will have from December until next March to pass his bill.

The house has cleared its legislative calendar and is waiting only for the senate to fight out its troubles.

Interment was made in Greenlawn cemetery, Chillicothe.

CIRCLEVILLE BOY RUN DOWN BY MACHINE

VIRGIL DIXON, 10, HAS LEGS BROKEN; DRIVER CAN'T SEE

Poorly Lighted Condition Of Street Crossing Blamed For Serious Accident

Virgil, the ten-year-old son of Raymond Dixon of Clinton-st. was struck by an automobile in front of the Grand Opera House, N. Court-st., last Saturday evening. The front wheels of a Chevrolet touring car, driven by Ernest Haueton of 917 Brown Road, Columbus, passed over the boy's legs above the knee. Both legs were broken.

Opponents of a boulevard lighting system in the city—if there are any—have an argument they cannot answer today as a result.

The driver of the car said he was unable to see the boys because of the poorly lighted condition of the street.

The child was picked up by the driver of the car and was taken to the office of Dr. Courtwright, where he was given surgical attention, and later was removed to Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, by the Albaugh Company ambulance.

Mr. Haueton said that in coming south on Court-st. the traffic light showed red, and that he had nearly come to a stop, when suddenly two boys darted out of the darkness and ran directly in the path of his machine. The boys were Raymond Dixon Jr. and Virgil Dixon. The first named, the younger of the two, was the fleetest runner and escaped injury, but the second fell beneath the wheels of his car before it came to a stop. Owing to the poor visibility at this intersection, drivers of cars are unable to distinguish persons crossing the street.

The Dixon boys were going out to the Carnival, and claim they ran across the street to go to the home of George Foerster, Manager of the Logan Gas Company, where they were sent by their father, so they said, on business.

The new business adventure in which Mr. Prose is now interested is said to be the second largest of its kind in Ohio and friends are wishing him success.

KATHARINE HEGELE SERIOUSLY BURNED

Miss Katharine Hegele, formerly of this city, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hegele of E. Main-st. was badly burned while cleaning clothes with gasoline in a basement on Stevens avenue, Columbus, Sunday.

All her clothing was burned off her body and her hands and legs were severely burned by the flames.

The injured girl was brought to the home of her parents in this city.

NEW YORK.—The first game of aerial golf was played at the old Westbury golf club when two teams of two men each went up in planes and tried to drop golf balls in the cup. One team was unable to hit the green on several holes, the ball landing in nearby rough.

Boasts Two Winners

The little town of Congress, Ohio, is justly proud of its two young citizens. Miss Pauline Gray is back from Washington with the second prize in the national spelling bee, and the same school sent Dean Lucas to Washington last year to win the first prize. This is a unique record for any town to hold.

PROSE BUYS OUT BIG DRUG STORE IN GREENFIELD

Edgar Prose, formerly partner in the George H. Fickard & Co. drug business here who recently sold out his interests, left for Greenfield, Ohio, Monday morning where he has purchased a large retail drug store.

He assumed charge at once of the business which is the largest in Greenfield. Mrs. Prose will join her husband in a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Prose have made many friends during their residence in this city and their leaving will be a source of regret to many.

TWO ESCAPE WHEN MACHINES COLLIDE

The cars of William Valentine and George Boyschall collided on the Circleville-London road, just beyond Five Points, Sunday morning, when the cars tried to pass on a narrow strip of the highway.

Neither were injured but the cars "hugged" each other so tightly they had to be brought in by the Dawson and Stout auto wrecker. The rear axle and end of the Valentine car, a Ford, was smashed, and the front axle of the Boyschall car was damaged, also a Ford.

Valentine was on his way to Urbana, when the cars crashed.

REPORT MRS. SHRIDE SLOWLY IMPROVING

Mrs. Frank Shride, who suffered a dislocated shoulder and possibly a broken shoulder bone last Thursday, when the auto in which she was driving collided with a car driven by Mr. Weiser, is reported getting along as well as could be expected.

An X-ray will be taken of her bruised shoulder today by Dr. Howard Jones and Dr. Courtwright to determine whether a bone is broken.

Her little grandchild Jeanne, daughter of Lawrence Spencer, escaped with slight cuts, Mr. and Mrs. Shride were on the way to Groveport to visit friends.

HOPE FOR NEWS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 28.—Hopeful that word of the missing dirigible Italia may come out of the North, Pacific coast radio operators listened today for new distress signals.

Charles L. Black, a San Francisco amateur, reported hearing a message believed to have come from a northern Siberian station. The radio Corporation of America later reported hearing the message.

MISSING CHILD IS FOUND DEAD BY TWO YOUTHS

Starvation And Exposure Is Coroner's Verdict As Hunt Ends

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 28.—Ten year old Beatrice Rosenbaum, missing 13 days when found dead near Salem, Sunday, died of starvation and exposure, a coroner's autopsy revealed today.

Earlier reports indicated the kidnapped child had been killed by a fiend who broke her neck. Coroner M. E. Hayes of Mahoning county, today said there were no marks of violence on the girl's body and that there was proof that starvation had caused her death.

Beatrice disappeared from her home in Youngstown, May 14. Neighbors of the Rosenbaum family said they had seen her kidnapped.

A search was made over the entire district near the city but there was no trace of the child, who was subnormal and only recently had been withdrawn from school because of defective speech.

Sunday, two boys found the girl's body in a thicket near Salem, about 26 miles from her home. There were indications she had been dragged from the roadside into the thicket.

Coroner Hayes said the girl had been dead about 48 hours when the boys, Robert Lippiatt, 15, and Melvin Lippiatt, 13, found her body.

CONVICTED WOMAN NEARS COLLAPSE

ALBANY, N. Y., May 28.—With Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, in a condition bordering on hysteria as the result of her conviction on a charge of larceny Saturday night, her friends today planned circulation of a petition asking judicial clemency for her when sentence is imposed next September.

They feel that she has been punished enough with the strain of two trials and a conviction, and that no good purpose can be served by imprisoning her as Supreme Court Justice Stephen J. Callaghan intimated he intended doing when he deferred imposition of sentence.

CARMICHAEL TO RUN

CLEVELAND, May 28.—Col. CarmicHAEL today declared his candidacy for the U. S. Senate.

Thompson at the primaries Aug. 14 will seek the senate seat made vacant by the death of Frank S. Willis.

In a statement announcing his candidacy, Thompson declared that if nominated and elected he would "devote all efforts and energy to maintain the high standard established by Ohio's representatives in the upper house of congress."

REPRESENTATIVE HURT

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Rep. Luther A. Johnson, of Texas, his daughter, Turner Read Luther, and a niece, Miss Totsy Berry, of Mexico, Texas, were cut and bruised last night when their automobile struck that of two negroes near Frederick, Md. Johnson and the negroes appeared at Frederick for preliminary hearing immediately afterward. The case will be heard there Thursday.

SILLY PEOPLE

CHICAGO.—The way Edwin Drew held his spoon annoyed his wife, Mrs. Gladys Drew, and they quarreled over his table manners. After the quarrel Mrs. Drew took poison. She died two days later.

Mrs. James B. Johnson doesn't want to see her husband, but Judge Joseph Sabath of the Cook County, Illinois, Superior Court has ordered her to be at home when her husband calls. And the court approved his demand that he be allowed to give her candy and flowers, to which she objects.

Hanleys Unhurt As Car Takes Plunge; Truck Is Blamed

When their auto skidded on the slippery Scioto Trail at Belle Sid-ing, north of Circleville, when they were returning from Columbus, Sunday night, Mrs. Marion Hanley and her son, Gerald, narrowly escaped death.

Gerald who was driving the car, a Buick coupe, noticed a truck ahead of him and imagined it was proceeding in the rain but slowly. Instead, the truck had stopped along the road and in attempting to go around the machine his own car skidded, turned around twice and headed for the "third rail" of the traction company.

A fence stopped the machine. Neither of the occupants were injured and the car was undamaged. The "third rail" would have spelled instant death had not the fence checked the car's progress.

BANDIT SEARCH IS PROVING FRUITLESS

DENVER, Col., May 28.—Believing their quarry has eluded them, scores of possemen hunting four bandits who staged the $44,000 Lamar, Colo., bank robbery dropped out of the search today.

Many of the men were disheartened by the seeming futility of tracking the men. Several arrests have been made and many clues followed, but today the bandits appeared as safe from capture as ever.

Interest in the manhunt has lagged perceptibly since Saturday, when it extended into five states and was joined by hundreds of men in armed motor cars and airplanes.

One airplane droned today over the Kansas "Bad Lands," where the search was concentrated over the week-end. It was in that section that the bandits were believed to have killed Dr. W. M. Wineinger, a physician whom they supposedly summoned to dress their wounds.

ACCOUNT FOR VICTIMS

HARLAN, Ky., May 28.—The eight victims of last Tuesday's mine explosion at the Black Mountain Mine No. 30, at Kinver, near here, were accounted for today after the finding yesterday of the badly burned body of Fred Romines, 31.

NEW YORK.—For the first York has gone through 24 hours without a hold-up being reported.

JAPANESE NAVAL ORDERS GIVEN TO CHINESE WARSHIPS

LONDON, May 28.—Japanese naval squadrons in the Tsingtao and Kia-Chow area have summarily forbade Chinese warships to engage in belligerent operations because such operations might endanger foreigners in the two districts, advices to the Daily Mail said today.

Rear Admiral Mukaida, according to dispatches from Tokio, issued the orders. He is in command of the second squadron of Japanese war vessels patrolling the waters of that district.

There was no indication here of what answer had been given to the Japanese demands.

Meanwhile reports said that Tokio still was hopeful a truce might be arranged between the northern and southern Chinese armies. Japan observers were aided in this belief that Chang Tso Lin, the northern leader, might be permitted to retain Peking or that a buffer state composed of Tientsin and Peking might be created thus separating the northeners, retired to the Manchurian province, and the southerners.

The reports to the Daily Mail said Japanese military preparations in South Manchuria continued.

TWO HELD AFTER CRASH OF AUTOS

Autos of James Reed, driving from the west on Mound-st., and Milton Cooper, going south on Scioto-st., collided at the intersection of the two streets, at noon Sunday, and as a result both will face charges of exceeding the speed limit and reckless driving.

They were arrested by Officer McCrady, and have put up $10 each for their appearance in Mayor Hedges' court tonight.

The force of the collision caused the machines to "ride" the hedge fence on the lot of Mrs. Frances Moore. All four tires on one machine "blew out" during the collision.

Report Nobile Has Landed In Alaska Believed To Be Unfounded

(BULLETIN)

OSLO, Norway, May 28.—Lieut. Lutzow Holm, star aviator, left in a seaplane from Tromsø today to go to the rescue of the stricken dirigible Italia.

Lieut. Holm was accompanied by a mechanic. The plane will join the icebreaking steamer Hobby at Tromsø, and proceed from there to northern Spitzbergen waters.

OSLO, May 28.—Wholly unfounded telegram from Kings Bay received at 1:40 p.m. today (7:40 a. m. est) reported that the dirigible Italia had landed in Alaska.

The Kings Bay report—the latest of a series of unconfirmed messages, most of which have been proved later to be untrue—was without confirmation from any other source, and gave no indication of its origin.

Out over the northernmost end of the world there flashed by radio today rumors, orders and messages of encouragement in the fight to save the crew of the lost Polar dirigible Italia.

Five and one-half days have elapsed since the airship started on what was to have been a 40-hour excursion over the North Pole.

For two and one-half days there have been no authenticated messages from the ship.

Rumors from all over the northern world have been circulated that the Italia has landed. The latest was that it landed in Alaska. Previous ones said it had landed at some unknown destination.

One by one, most of these messages have been proved untrue. They were largely messages from one station to another regarding the Italia, and were misinterpreted by intercepting stations.

A couple of the rumors survived today, still as rumors. None has been authenticated.

The orders flashed out over the radio network in the northern world had to do with the greatest rescue expedition in history.

From Alaska Siberia across Asia and still westward to Alaska, individuals were searching for the Italia or ready to help.

The Italia's base ship Citta Di Milano, that left Kings Bay yesterday on the first rescue expedition, was anchored at Dane's Island, off the northwest coast of Spitzbergen, ready to start a search of the neighborhood and was flashing out at frequent intervals a message to the Italia that help was coming.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, May 28.—Modern and primitive means of transportation were combined today in heroic attempts to find the polar dirigible Italia and her crew of 16 men, now more than 125 hours out of Kings Bay from where she started with a fuel supply for only 72 hours of flying.

Air, water and the hard packed snow of the northland were to be used as trails for the hardy adventurers who have volunteered to go to the rescue of General Umberto Nobile and his dauntless aides of the Italia.

Meanwhile hour after hour passed with no word of the fate of the dirigible which last week toured over the North Pole and then headed into the Arctic storm that ripped her cover, disabled an engine and finally silenced her radio.

An airplane, steamships and a dog team were ready to set out today in relief attempts and strangely enough for this modern twentieth century civilization, greatest rescue hopes centered in the most primitive mode of travel.

The famed Norwegian hunter, Moy, volunteered his services and sometime today will leave with a little group of Eskimos behind a swift dog team for the North.

They will go to the vicinity of 81 degrees north latitude and between 17 and 28 degrees east longitude—north of Spitzbergen—from where the last known direct message from Nobile originated.

Communications direct from the Italia Friday morning.

Better See Your Local Lumbermen First

The other day we listened to the story of a man in another community who purchased a "ready cut" house.

The material came cut to length and ready to nail together.

Before the building was completed, however, the purchaser was ready to concede that there are many flaws in the "ready cut" system. Carpenters on the job were on the verge of hysteria before the work was finished.

All of which illustrates that the promise of great savings in building materials from such houses are not always to be relied upon.

Our lumbermen in Circleville are doing their utmost to give service. They furnish reliable building information as well as building materials. They merit your patronage.

Fears were expressed that silence from then on may have meant the crippled aircraft, struggling against powerful headwinds and with her power damaged, may have been forced down. It was believed that last message was sent from the general vicinity of 81 degrees north and 17 degrees east.

Therefore Moy, experienced in finding his way about the unmarked northern territory, chose that vicinity to start his relief expedition. He plans to comb the region between 17 and 28 degrees east longitude provided such a search is possible.

THE NATIONAL MEMORIAL DAY

Many years have passed since the first National Memorial day was celebrated. The changes that have occurred in that time are something incomprehensible.

But the qualities of heroism which the American people honor, have not undergone change. Human character remains the same. The men who were honored in 1865 are still just as much venerated today. We need their qualities, their fine spirit of self sacrifice just as much today.

The rancors and hatreds of 1865 have disappeared in 1928. We have one united country, which recognizes that a very wonderful spirit was manifested on both sides of the unfortunate Civil war of 65 years ago. Let us venerate the grey headed men who survive as the heroic survivors of that struggle, and teach our young people to show that same devotion to our country now, here in Ohio.

The National Memorial day has now become the occasion for honoring the memory of the veterans of all the American wars. The American people hope that the war making spirit is going to fade out of sight. But we must not fail to honor those who responded so nobly in former days. In spite of all we can do, it is still possible that such a direful exigency will occur again.

If it ever does come, the young men must know that it is their duty to support their country, and the rest of us must see them go off to the call of duty without protest. But while we may possibly have to meet again the dread contingency of war, we must not forget that the modern spirit of peaceful adjustment should make it possible to harmonize all such differences without fighting.

RADIUM POISONING

It is a terrible death that several young women are dying in Orange, N. J. They have been poisoned by radium paint, in the course of their employment—painting watches with a radium preparation. The stuff lodges in their bones, and there continues sending out its mysterious rays, some of which are deadly. They disintegrate the bones and vitiate the blood. At first the effect is stimulating. Then comes disease, with lingering torture, sure to be fatal in the end.

Their predicament might have been avoided if as much had been known about radium paint when they started to work as is known now. It came from carelessness. The painters were in the habit of "pointing" their brushes with their lips as they worked. From the lips the radium worked into the blood and bones. The brushes, of course, can be pointed in some other way.

It is a timely warning to industrial employers and workers everywhere of the strange, new perils that often develop in modern industry, and the need of expert knowledge and safety precautions. It is a good illustration, too, of the familiar warning to children from cautious mothers: "Never put anything into your mouth but food."

RELIGIOUS UNITY

Five hundred ministers were selected at random in each of three denominations and asked to reply confidentially to this question: "Are you in favor, in principle, of the organic union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches?"

With more than half of the entire number heard from, the verdict stands 90 per cent in favor of union.

Efforts to work out an acceptable arrangement for such a merger will now go forward more earnestly than ever. If they succeed, as they well may, it will be a development whose significance will be appreciated everywhere.

Creed and church government do not seem to offer insurmountable barriers. The age of Christian division is passing. The age of re-consolidation may be at hand. It may be, as one of the leaders says, that "the next great move in Protestantism will be toward union."

JEWELS

These are the Jewels
Man cannot buy;
The memories
Of other days,
The azure
Of a summer sky,
The little girl with
Pleasing eye,
The youthful hours
That slipped by,
And left you sitting
In a haze—
This is the Heritage
Of man:

The marble games
That you once
Played,
The glamour of the Swimming pool,
The thrill
Of morning trips to School—
You thought them
irksome then,
Poor fools!—
Those times that
Now
Seem godly
Made—

And what we mean to say
Is,
These are the gems
That each one
Owns:
The thought that here
I have a friend,
In that old school
That came to Me,
In pairs to share my Misery,
In knowing that
There'll always be,
These memories
Until the End

So smile, for awhile,
And try not to frown;
When wages go up,
Our skirts will come down.

NEIGHBOR'S INCOME

President Coolidge is said to be opposed to the Senate provision for publicity of income tax returns. He thinks that it is an improper intrusion into the private affairs of citizens, and that it tends to the concealment of income and lessening of government revenues. People do not like to have everybody know what their income is.

The President and a good many million other people remember the
unpopularity of the publicity provision incorporated in the federal revenue bill of 1924. It is hardly likely that the House will forget that as the Senate seems to have done.

SYNOPSIS

Buckwell, a Frisco politician, seeks to secure valuable ancestral Vasquez property. His lawyer's nephew, Terry, loves Dolores Vasquez and exposes Buckwell's nefarious love affair. Vasquez dies of stroke when Buckwell threatens to dispossess him. Dolores and Terry expose Buckwell as Chinamen to avenge Vasquez's death. Buckwell kidnaps them and threatens Terry's life unless Dolores elopes. She elopes with her associates and saves Terry. Buckwell triumphs. Dolores foils Buckwell and exposes him to other bosses. Terry is freed but Buckwell escapes into underworld, forcing Dolores with him.

And in the very heart of this underground community was a meeting place reserved for a chosen few; for the minority whose worldly wealth had reached the point where it could buy whatever the heart desired. Guarded approaches led from a dozen directions, like the spokes of a wheel, with this strange of evil mystery as the hub. "The Shrine of the Golden Door" it was called. But to those denizens of the underworld who were not permitted to enter its sacred and mysterious interior it had been dubbed "The Den of a Thousand Sins." As apt an expression as could be found.

What mad notion possessed Buckwell when he escaped from the wrath of the bosses and the Chinamen he had wronged, forcing Dolores to go with him; he probably did not know himself. His most urgent idea was to flee. But where? He tried to decide as he and San

The grinning face of a Chinaman loomed at her.

Toy alternately pushed and pulled Dolores along the dimly lighted passage that led from the back of his private shrine. The power of the long leaders was great. The long arm of their authority reached to the innermost depths of the underworld. No place was safe from their prying eyes.

No place save one. Buckwell's eyes lighted with hope and fear as he thought of "The Den of a Thousand Sins." Here he would be safe. Not even the influence of the long leaders was great enough for them to violate the sacred laws of his shrine, that gave protection to all who were within its walls. He smiled eagerly as he urged Dolores to a greater haste. What would happen after he left his protecting walls was another matter, but that evil day would be postponed as long as possible.

They emerged from the narrow passage along which they had been traveling and entered a broader one that was evidently a main thoroughfare for the net work of smaller ones that led into it. Here for the first time they encountered some of the dwellers of this underground city. Slant eyed Celestials shuffling along gazed at them curiously, but no one accosted them or offered to interfere in anyway.

Dolores was half dead with terror and eagerness. Her tired brain was in a daze. The events of the last day passed before her like the phantasy of a fevered dream. She tried to struggle from Buckwell's grasp, but her feeble strength was not equal to the task. With a sob of resignation she permitted her self to be dragged along.

Presently they turned aside from the main passage and entered a narrow one that wound so tortuously it was impossible to tell the direction in which they were going. Suddenly an iron door blocked their progress. Buckwell tapped on its surface in quick fashion, a panel opened and the wrinkled features of an old Chinese woman peered out at them. She recognized Buckwell and without delay opened the door for them to enter.

A carpeted passageway faced them. This widened gradually until it disappeared entirely into a huge semi-circular room luxuriously furnished.

Apparently it was a reception hall or reception room, because several doors on the inner side indicated that the main chamber was somewhere beyond.

Here they were met by a hard faced, painted woman. She was elaborately gowned and greeted Buckwell with a mingling of familiarity and great respect. "Who have we here?" she queried softly as she took hold of Dolores' arm.

"She, my dear Madam," replied Buckwell, "is a pearl of great price. A princess of Spain whose haughty pride repulsed the advances of a certain man of influence, and whose foolish tongue betrayed an innermost secret of his heart. Guard her well and see that she is most becomingly groomed, for I have need of her later in the evening."

With the faithful San Toy on one side and the painted Madam on the other, Dolores was half led, half carried to an inner chamber where she was unconsciously deposited on a low divan.

"The young woman seems exhausted. It will be better if we leave her to rest for awhile. Later on she will perhaps be more tractable and more pleasing to those whose interests are in her," said the Madam with the wisdom of much experience in such matters.

"Skin Diseases" That Destroy Some Pavement Surfaces

—they do not affect brick!

Weather, which helps destroy pavement, works from the surface down. Traffic, too, attacks surface. Unless surfaced with a material specially qualified to withstand this damage, watch out for "skin diseases" of your pavement! They show in checked, pock-marked surfaces.

Water, entering pavement surface either by absorption or through tiny cracks, starts destruction when it freezes. Traffic pounds at these defects and rapidly increases them.

Paving brick, being vitrified, is waterproof—does not absorb water. Laid on any good base and bound with asphalt, it is a surface that absolutely keeps water out. What's more, with its shock absorbing sand cushion, it has the resilience—the "give"—pavement surface must have to protect the base from heavy-load pounding

A brick surface adds years of life to a pavement

Thus brick is two things: the toughest wearing surface you can put on street or road; and the surest protection for pavement base.

That is why all known records prove it to be the cheapest, yet highest value pavement, the money of taxpayers can buy!

Better See Your Local Lumbermen First

The other day we listened to the story of a man in another community who purchased a "ready cut" house.

The material came cut to length and ready to nail together.

Before the building was completed, however, the purchaser was ready to concede that there are many flaws in the "ready cut" system. Carpenters on the job were on the verge of hysteria before the work was finished.

All of which illustrates that the promise of great savings in building materials from such houses are not always to be relied upon.

Our lumbermen in Circleville are doing their utmost to give service. They furnish reliable building information as well as building materials. They merit your patronage.

THE NATIONAL MEMORIAL DAY

Many years have passed since the first National Memorial day was celebrated. The changes that have occurred in that time are something incomprehensible.

But the qualities of heroism which the American people honor, have not undergone change. Human character remains the same. The men who were honored in 1865 are still just as much venerated today. We need their qualities, their fine spirit of self sacrifice just as much today.

The rancors and hatreds of 1865 have disappeared in 1928. We have one united country, which recognizes that a very wonderful spirit was manifested on both sides of the unfortunate Civil war of 65 years ago. Let us venerate the grey headed men who survive as the heroic souvenirs of that struggle, and teach our young people to show that same devotion to our country now, here in Ohio.

The National Memorial day has now become the occasion for honoring the memory of the veterans of all the American wars. The American people hope that the war making spirit is going to fade out of sight. But we must not fail to honor those who responded so nobly in former days. In spite of all we can do, it is still possible that such a direful exigency will occur again.

If it ever does come, the young men must know that it is their duty to support their country, and the rest of us must see them go off to the call of duty without protest. But while we may possibly have to meet again the dread contingency of war, we must not forget that the modern spirit of peaceful adjustment should make it possible to harmonize all such differences without fighting.

RADIUM POISONING

It is a terrible death that several young women are dying in Orange, N. J. They have been poisoned by radium paint, in the course of their employment—painting watches with a radium preparation. The stuff lodges in their bones, and there continues sending out its mysterious rays, some of which are deadly. They disintegrate the bones and vitiate the blood. At first the effect is stimulating. Then comes disease, with lingering torture, sure to be fatal in the end.

Their predicament might have been avoided if as much had been known about radium paint when they started to work as is known now. It came from carelessness. The painters were in the habit of "pointing" their brushes with their lips as they worked. From the lips the radium worked into the blood and bones. The brushes, of course, can be pointed in some other way.

It is a timely warning to industrial employers and workers everywhere of the strange, new perils that often develop in modern industry, and the need of expert knowledge and safety precautions. It is a good illustration, too, of the familiar warning to children from cautious mothers: "Never put anything into your mouth but food."

RELIGIOUS UNITY

Five hundred ministers were selected at random in each of three denominations and asked to reply confidentially to this question:

"Are you in favor, in principle, of the organic union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches?"

With more than half of the entire number heard from, the verdict stands 90 per cent in favor of union.

Efforts to work out an acceptable arrangement for such a merger will now go forward more earnestly than ever. If they succeed, as they well may, it will be a development whose significance will be appreciated everywhere.

Creed and church government do not seem to offer insurmountable barriers. The age of Christian division is passing. The age of re-consolidation may be at hand. It may be, as one of the leaders says, that "the next great move in Protestantism will be toward union."

This is the

You thought them
Irksome then,

Those times that

And what we mean to say
Is,
These are the gems
That each one
Owns:
The thought that here
I have a friend,
In that old school
That came to

In pals to share my

In knowing that
There'll always be,

NEIGHBOR'S INCOME

President Coolidge is said to be
opposed to the Senate provision
for publicity of income tax returns. He thinks that it is an improper intrusion into the private affairs of citizens, and that it tends to the concealment of income and lessening of government revenues. People do not like to have everybody know what their income is.

The President and a good many
million other people remember the
unpopularity of the publicity
provision incorporated in the federal revenue bill of 1924. It is hardly likely that the House will forget that as the Senate seems
to have done.

And in the very heart of this underground community was a meeting place reserved for a chosen few; for the minority whose worldly wealth had reached the point where it could buy whatever the heart desired. Guarded approaches led from a dozen directions, like the spokes of a wheel, to this shrine of evil mystery as the hub. "The Shrine of the Golden Door" it was called. But to those denizens of the underworld who were not permitted to enter its sacred and mysterious interior it had been dubbed "The Den of a Thousand Sins." As apt an expression as could be found.

What mad notion possessed Buckwell; when he escaped from the wrath of the bosses and the Chinamen he had wronged, forcing Dolores to go with him; he probably did not know himself. His most urgent idea was to flee. But where? He tried to decide as he and San

The grinning face of a Chinaman leered at her.

Toy alternately pushed and pulled Dolores along the dimly lighted passage that led from the back of his private shrine. The power of the long leaders was great. The long arm of their authority reached into the innermost depths of the underworld. No place was safe from their prying eyes.

No place save one. Buckwell's eyes lighted with keen anticipation as he thought of "The Den of a Thousand Sins." Here he would be safe. Not even the influence of the long leaders was great enough for them to violate the sacred laws of the underworld, that gave protection to all who were within its walls. He smiled eagerly as he urged Dolores to a greater haste. What would happen after he left its protecting walls was another matter, but that evil day would be postponed as long as possible.

They emerged from the narrow passage along which they had been traveling and entered a broader one that was evidently a main thoroughfare for the net work of smaller ones that led into it. Here for the first time they encountered some of the dwellers of this underground city. Slant eyed Celestials shuffling along gazed at them curiously, but no one accosted them or offered to interfere in anyway.

Dolores was half dead with terror and weariness. Her tired brain was in a daze. The events of the last day passed before her like the phantasy of a fevered dream. She tried to struggle from Buckwell's grasp, but her feeble strength was not equal to the task. With a sob of resignation she permitted herself to be dragged along.

Presently they turned aside from the main passage and entered a narrow one that wound so tortuously it was impossible to tell the direction in which they were going. Suddenly an iron door blocked their progress. Buckwell tapped on its surface in queer fashion. A small panel opened and the wrinkled features of an old Chinese woman peered out at them. She recognized Buckwell and without delay opened the door for them to enter.

A carpeted passageway faced them. This widened gradually until it disappeared entirely into a huge semi-circular room luxuriously fur-

"Skin Diseases" That Destroy Some Pavement Surfaces

—they do not affect brick!

Weather, which helps destroy pavement, works from the surface down. Traffic, too, attacks surface. Unless surfaced with a material specially qualified to withstand this damage, watch out for "skin diseases" of your pavement! They show in checked, pock-marked surfaces.

Water, entering pavement surface either by absorption or through tiny cracks, starts destruction when it freezes. Traffic pounds at these defects and rapidly increases them.

Paving brick, being vitrified, is waterproof—does not absorb water. Laid on any good base and bound with asphalt, it is a surface that absolutely keeps water out. What's more, with its shock absorbing sand cushion, it has the resilience—the "give"—pave ment surface must have to protect the base from heavy-load pounding

Thus brick is two things: the toughest wearing surface you can put on street or road; and the surest protection for pavement base.

That is why all known records prove it to be the cheapest, yet highest value pavement, the money of taxpayers can buy!

"The A. B. C. of Good Paving," a taxpayer's manual, tells in words and pictures how engineers today build ever-wearing, low cost, brick surfaced roads and streets. Address your request to National Paving Brick Manufacturers Association, 332 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago.

OKLAHOMA LAD FIRST WINNER OF MARATHON

Promoter Admits Pioneering In Sport Game Is "Tough Racket"

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 28.—Smilingly C. C. Pyle today bade adieu to a major portion of the fifty-five runners and walkers, who survived his first attempt at a transcontinental marathon by finishing Saturday night in Madison Square Garden. The rest will remain to run in his 26-hour relay race at the Garden Friday night. If this race is a financial success, Chicago, Boston and other cities will be given an opportunity to gaze upon what Pyle regards as "The greatest long distance runners in the world."

The luxurious comforts of a Broadway hotel left a number of the runners gasping with astonishment after having endured all the discomforts of the road. Bath tubs were regarded as curios.

Sandy Payne, the twenty-year-old Claremore, Oklahoma farm boy, who finished first after running 3422.3 miles, remained quiet today.

Pyle was still in a jovial mood last night and refused to admit that the race was not a success.

"The papers all spelled the name right which is the important thing," he said in reference to the adverse stories carried questioning his ability to make good in the matter of the $48,500 in prize money.

"You know," he said, "You have to have a sense of humor in this promotion business and most important of all you must keep it working overtime."

"I'm not only satisfied with the outcome of this year's race but also plan to re-stage it next year. In my next cross country race the entrance fee will be $250 instead of the $25 demanded this year. The runners will also be required to feed and house themselves as well as taking care of their trainers. This will eliminate innumerable squawks regarding the cuisine for which I have been criticized in this, my first attempt at an endurance marathon of such proportions."

While Pyle was saying this the telephone rang with another of his ex-runners calling. When Pyle told him to drop around to the hotel this morning for his $100 to return home, Sydney Morris of Los Angeles, the runner protested. "Is $100 all I get. Think what I suffered in this race, Mr. Pyle. Shouldn't I get a little something extra for my suffering," he asked.

"What do I get for my suffering? was the smiling comeback voiced by Pyle. "I've suffered too, Morris. I have wrinkles in my trouser pockets from digging and writer's camp from signing checks to bring you from Los Angeles to New York. See me in the morning and get your $100."

"Yes," he continued, hanging up the receiver, "This pioneering a sport is a tough racket but you can't hang a guy for trying."

He is booked to defend his title in a 15-round match against Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., former welterweight champion, Wednesday night at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. If successful, he will again defend his crown against Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo at the Polo grounds June 14 and then two weeks later he will face Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen, (Wash.), Asasin.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN TO SEE ACTION

NEW YORK, May 28.—Tommy Loughran, the light-heavyweight champion who likes to fight, will see plenty of action during the next month.

He is booked to defend his title in a 15-round match against Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., former welterweight champion, Wednesday night at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. If successful, he will again defend his crown against Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo at the Polo grounds June 14 and then two weeks later he will face Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen, (Wash.), Asasin.

111 KILLED WHEN REBELS-FEDERALS ENGAGE IN FIGHT

Gunboat Throws Up Bombardment; 103 Also Said To Be Injured

MEXICO CITY, May 28.—One of the greatest of the recent series of rebel-federal battles, in which a gunboat aided with heavy bombardments, was reported today with the casualty list definitely established at 111 men dead. Official advices said 103 persons had been injured.

The attack occurred when several hundred rebels attempted to take the west coast city of Manzanillo.

They advanced, according to an official report from General Heliodoro Charis in command of the state of Colima on Friday after cutting off communications leading into the city.

Thirty soldiers were in Manzanillo and they were aided by local citizens and constabulary. It was an uneven battle until a gunboat in the harbor started bombarding the rebel positions.

Meanwhile infantry and cavalry troops rushed in from Colima City and took up the battle after the outnumbered Manzanillo local troops had been in several street clashes with the advancing rebels. The battle lasted throughout the day and the rebels finally were dispersed.

Several of the rebels were captured and executed, the official reports said, including a number of prominent leaders.

The rebel losses were 82 dead and 75 wounded while the federal losses were placed at 29 dead and 28 wounded.

Three Pupils of Miss Stella Becker Take Part In Review

Three Circleville pupils of Miss Stella Becker took part in her annual review, Saturday night at the Central high school auditorium, in Columbus. They were Jeanne Crow, Marvene Wallace and Jean Clifton.

The revue was based on a fairy story where household furnishings and toys came to life at the magical hour of midnight. Opportunity for clever entrances was afforded the 150 dancers as the story proceeded, from the time that the boy and girl candle sticks jumped from their places, to experience real adventure, to the big finale, after many adventures with a wicked old Chinaman and a beautiful fairy queen.

Jeanne Crow, an advanced pupil of Miss Becker, first appeared as "Carnival," one of the books, which stood at the back of the stage, supported by two pretty girl book-ends. Hers was a lithe dance with many difficult and technical whirled and leaps. She was supported by chorus of dancers who represented the spirit of the carnival. In this solo she wore a very short black velvet suit, with a buckle of little mirrors at the belt, and with wide net rouching edged with silver, at the neck and wrists.

She was also a dancer in the wedgewood plate, the scene which won a most hearty applause from the audience. Her costume here was of sheer white crepe de chine. In another dance, the aviator number, the costumes were snappy looking aviation suits, with a propeller on the cap. The chorus was as well drilled as in any professional show.

Marvene Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wallace, was a beautiful silver winged fairy, who had plenty of opportunity to show skill and grace in the fairy dances. Her costume was white and shimmering with silver wings. Jean Clifton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Clifton, was one of the "babies" in the revue. These dancers who really were nothing more than babies, were wheeled onto the stage in baby buggies, by nimbly-stepping maids. Then each baby was lifted from her carriage to do an individual dance. Jean was lifted out and executed a little dance which received much applause, as did all of these baby dancers. After each dancer finished, she had to be lifted back into her carriage again. Her elaborate bow at the end of the dance, was an accomplishment by itself.

Those who attended the revue from Circleville, were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wallace, Ralph Wallace, Henry Taylor McCrady, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Clifton and son Jack, Mr. and Mrs. Turney Clifton, Mr. and Mrs. George Grimm, Mr. and Mrs. Loring McAbee, Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Mosely and daughter Helen, Mrs. William Clifton and son Harold, Mrs. Wilber Hoffer, Mrs. Sarah Crowe, Mrs. Mercedes Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Rinehart, Mrs. Louise Crawford, Mrs. George Pickard, Mrs. Leland Pontious, Mr. R. F. Cain, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crowe and Miss Allison Delaplane. Mrs. Fannie Stage of Columbus was also one of the party.

Guests Sunday, of her mother Mrs. Germain Joseph. Their son Der-shon and daughter Caroline remained for a longer visit.

Mrs. Carrie Patton was the Sunday guest of her son Mr. W. A. Patton and family in Columbus.

Glenn Vanscoy is home for the summer from St. Xavier college in Cincinnati.

MAN, GORED BY BULL, IN SERIOUS SHAPE

text, the charge of David to his son, Solomon, who was to succeed him in the kingdom. The sermon was "A Heritage and a Task." Lindbergh, both in his outstanding adventure and his outstanding character was used as a type of youth of today. He told the class, that for them the world was beginning. He said also that some things are old-fashioned but that truths never change. He told the students that experience had taught everyone to fear God and keep his commandments; that the farther a man gets away from God, the farther he gets from the true vision of life.

He reminded the pupils of their wonderful heritage—their splendid schools, wonderfully equipped, and the well trained corps of high school teachers. He said it was a marvelously rich storehouse that had been played into their hands. Among many other beautiful thoughts the speaker gave, was that of the present need for upright manhood, and true womanhood. He said he admired the frankness of the young people, but abhorred the familiarity. His advice to both the boys and the girls, will be remembered always. Some of it was offered with good humor, but most of it was spoken with a deep realization of the life before the graduates.

Some of them will always remember one thing in the sermon, others will remember some other part.

Mr. Toensmeier, in his sermon, wanted the pupils to help make a better world—it is up to them to do something about it. Reference was made to the youth conventions, held since the war, their attitude on war, and on religion as a practical life.

The speaker's most splendid charge to the class follows: "Class of 1928 of the Circleville high school—

I imagine that you feel as if I were giving you an impossible task. 'Nothing is impossible,' said Jesus. 'To him that believeth.' I could have spoken smooth words, could have told you how to be successful but a larger world has come upon us overnight. We dare no longer think of our lives in terms of ourselves. That would be selfish. As you go out from your school I would not have you imagine that you are big enough to turn this world that has been overturned, right side up. No one man is big enough for that but I would have you link your lives with God, whose power is infinite. I would have you follow the leadership of Jesus Christ, who does not promise you an easy life or wealth or success, but service and sacrifice and a cross and then a victor's crown. You can play your part as heroes in the strife. You can honestly do your bit. Your education is given you, not merely to make a living, that is needed, but it is given you as a trust to use for larger ends.

"Solomon built the temple with the gold and silver an accumulated material David placed in his hands. But he made a failure of his life. He failed as king. He thought only of himself. The people existed for him and not he for the people. There are those who say—the world owes me a living. The world owes no man anything but a chance and then a struggle.

A four-times offender in Michigan must go to prison for life for having a pint of gin. But if it is real gin maybe he thinks it is worth it.—Springfield (Ohio) Sun.

What is home without a can opener or a bottle capper?—Florida Times-Union.

it judges the man by what he does with his chance. I hope you will add lustre to your school but more, I hope and pray that your names will be written in the Lamb's Book of Life."

"He who, believing, strongly lays his hand

Unto the work that waits for him to do—

Though men should cavi, measures prove untrue, Friends write their trusted promises on sand,

And failure mock him with its threatening brand, Still, in the end, he fearless, shall pursue

Till crack of doom, will find a power which few Or none with cause less righteous may command.

For conquest is not built on the defeat Of any man whose aim is human good;

Who fights for justice hath already won, Before no show of loss shall be retreat;

However, crossed, maligned, misunderstood, He knows but triumph in the work well done."

"Arise and be doing, and the Lord be with you."

Canada's optimistic outlook is undimmed, says the Canadian Pacific Railroad. Of course it is. Is not the migration from Volsteadia about to begin?—Boston Transcript.

Curtis To Fight For Adjournment Of Congress

FLOOR LEADER OF G. O. P. SAYS HE WILL WIN

And In That Case Senate Will Probably Have All-Night Session

(BULLETIN)
WASHINGTON, May 28.—Beaten by two votes in an effort to hold congress in session another week, Senator Hiram Johnson today conceded defeat of his Boulder Dam bill at this session and sought to have it made the unfinished business when congress meets next December.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Senator Curtis, Republican floor leader, marshalled his followers today to defeat the insurrection against his plan of adjourning congress tomorrow.

Curtis said he believed he has sufficient senatorial votes to adopt immediately the adjournment resolution, already adopted by the house.

If Curtis wins, the senate will probably be kept in continuous session over night from 11 a. m. today until 5 p. m. tomorrow, the hour which his resolution would set for final adjournment.

Despite Curtis' optimism, Senator Hiram Johnson, leader of the opposition, made plans to fight for a vote on his two amendments to the adjournment resolution; the first would provide adjournment June 5 and the second June 9.

Johnson wants the additional time to get action on his Boulder Canyon dam bill which now has been pending nearly two years. He is faced with a vigorous filibuster led by Senator Ashurst, Dem., Ariz.

During the chaos over other matters last week, Ashurst and his followers gathered strength for their last stand. Johnson knows Ashurst and his aides can easily talk until 5 p. m. tomorrow. But if Johnson can delay adjournment for a week, he thinks the filibusterers may become exhausted.

Two other matters are involved in the fight. Chairman Hale of the naval affairs committee wants senate action on the Houg bill to authorize construction of 15 new 10,000-ton cruisers and another aircraft carrier. Farm bloc senators are filibustering against that bill and will not permit a vote if they can prevent. Chairman David A. Reed of the military affairs committee is seeking a vote on his bill to promote army aviation. Senator Black, Dem., Ala., and others are fighting that measure.

All other important bills are out of the way. The appropriation bills among these have been passed.

Johnson is unwilling to give way either to Hale or Reed, for fear of jeopardizing chances of the Boulder dam bill. Johnson wants at the least to keep his measure the unfinished business until the final moment of the session. Then when congress reconvenes in December it will still be unfinished business and as will have from December until next March to pass his bill.

The house has cleared its legislative calendar and is waiting only for the senate to fight out its troubles.

CIRCLEVILLE BOY RUN DOWN BY MACHINE

VIRGIL DIXON, 10, HAS LEGS BROKEN; DRIVER CAN'T SEE

Poorly Lighted Condition Of Street Crossing Blamed For Serious Accident

Virgil, the ten-year-old son of Raymond Dixon of Clinton-st. was struck by an automobile in front of the Grand Opera House, N. Court-st., last Saturday evening. The front wheels of a Chevrolet touring car, driven by Ernest Haueton of 917 Brown Road, Columbus, passed over the boy's legs above the knee. Both legs were broken.

Opponents of a boulevard lighting system in the city—if there are any—have an argument they cannot answer today as a result.

The driver of the car said he was unable to see the boys because of the poorly lighted condition of the street.

The child was picked up by the driver of the car and was taken to the office of Dr. Courtwright, where he was given surgical attention, and later was removed to Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, by the Albaugh Company ambulance.

Mr. Haueton said that in coming south on Court-st. the traffic light showed red, and that he had nearly come to a stop, when suddenly two boys darted out of the darkness and ran directly in the path of his machine. The boys were Raymond Dixon Jr. and Virgil Dixon. The first named, the younger of the two, was the fastest runner and escaped injury, but the second fell beneath the wheels of his car before it came to a stop. Owing to the poor visibility at this intersection, drivers of cars are unable to distinguish persons crossing the street.

The Dixon boys were going out to the Carnival, and claim they ran across the street to go to the home of George Foerster, Manager of the Logan Gas Company, where they were sent by their father, so they said, on business.

All her clothing was burned off her body and her hands and legs were severely burned by the flames.

The injured girl was brought to the home of her parents in this city.

TWO ESCAPE WHEN MACHINES COLLIDE

The cars of William Valentine and George Boyschall collided on the Circleville-London road, just beyond Five Points, Sunday morning, when the cars tried to pass on a narrow strip of the highway.

Neither were injured but the cars "hugged" each other so tightly they had to be brought in by the Dawson and Stout auto wrecker. The rear axle and end of the Valentine car, a Ford, was smashed, and the front axle of the Boyschall car was damaged, also a Ford.

Valentine was on his way to Urbana when the cars crashed.

An X-ray will be taken on her bruised shoulder today by Dr. Howard Jones and Dr. Courtwright to determine whether a bone is broken.

Her little grandchild, a daughter of Lawrence Shride, aged 1 1/2, who was with Mrs. Shride when she was in the car, is now in the hospital.

HOPE FOR NEWS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 28.—Hoped that word of the loss of the dirigible Italia may come out of the North Pacific coast, radio operators listened today for distress signals.

MISSING CHILD IS FOUND DEAD BY TWO YOUTHS

Starvation And Exposure Is Coroner's Verdict As Hunt Ends

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 28.—Ten year old Beatrice Rosenbaum, missing 13 days when found dead near Salem, Sunday, died of starvation and exposure, a coroner's autopsy revealed today.

Earlier reports indicated the kidnaped child had been killed by a fiend who broke her neck. Coroner M. E. Hayes of Mahoning county, today said there were no marks of violence on the girl's body and that there was proof that starvation had caused her death.

Beatrice disappeared from her home in Youngstown, May 14. Neighbors of the Rosenbaum family said they had seen her kidnaped.

A search was made over the entire district near the city but there was no trace of the child, who was subnormal and only recently had been withdrawn from school because of defective speech.

Sunday, two boys found the girl's body in a thicket near Salem, about 25 miles from her home. There were indications she had been dragged from the roadside into the thicket.

Coroner Hayes said the girl had been dead about 48 hours when the boys, Robert Lippiatt, 15, and Melvin Lippiatt, 13, found her body.

CONVICTED WOMAN NEARS COLLAPSE

ALBANY, N. Y., May 28.—With Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, in a condition bordering on hysteria as the result of her conviction on a charge of larceny Saturday night, her friends today planned circulation of a petition asking judicial clemency for her when sentence is imposed next September.

They feel that she has been punished enough with the strain of two trials and a conviction, and that no good purpose can be served by imprisoning her as Supreme Court Justice Stephen J. Callaghan intimated he intended doing when he deferred imposition of sentence.

CLEVELAND, May 28.—Col. Carmi A. Thompson today declared his candidacy for the U. S. Senate.

Hanleys Unhurt As Car Takes Plunge; Truck Is Blamed

When their auto skidded on the slippery Senoto Trail at Belle Sid-ing, north of Circleville, when they were returning from Columbus, Sunday night, Mrs. Marion Hanley and her son, Gerald, narrowly escaped death.

Gerald who was driving the car, a Buick coupe, noticed a truck ahead of him and imagined it was proceeding in the rain but slowly. Instead, the truck had stopped along the road and in attempting to go around the machine his own car skidded, turned around twice and headed for the "third rail" of the traction company.

A fence stopped the machine. Neither of the occupants were injured and the car was undamaged. The "third rail" would have spelled instant death had not the fence checked the car's progress.

BANDIT SEARCH IS PROVING FRUITLESS

DENVER, Col., May 28.—Believing their quarry has eluded them, scores of possemen hunting four bandits who stole the $11,000 Lamar, Colo., bank robbery dropped out of the search today.

Many of the men were disheartened by the seeming futility of tracking the men. Several arrests have been made and many clues followed, but today the bandits appeared as safe from capture as ever.

Interest in the "trunk" has lagged perceptibly since Saturday when it was extended into five states and was being followed by hundreds of men in armed motor cars and planes.

One airplane dropped today over the Kansas "Red Lands" where the trunk was concentrated after the weekend. It was in the hope that the trunk was in the area and would be found.

NEW YORK, May 28.—The city has gone through the day without a holiday being reported.

JAPANESE NAVAL ORDERS GIVEN TO CHINESE WARSHIPS

LONDON, May 28.—Japanese naval squadrons in the Tsingtao and Kia-Chow area have summarily forbade Chinese warships to engage in belligerent operations because such operations might endanger foreigners in the two districts, advices to the Daily Mail said today.

Rear Admiral Mukaida, according to dispatches from Tokio, issued the orders. He is in command of the second squadron of Japanese war vessels patrolling the waters of that district.

There was no indication here of what answer had been given to the Japanese demands.

Meanwhile reports said that Tokio still was hopeful a truce might be arranged between the northern and southern Chinese armies. Japan observers were aided in this belief that Chang Tso Lin, the northern leader, might be permitted to retain Peking or that a buffer state composed of Tientsin and Peking might be created thus separating the north and south.

The reports to the Daily Mail said Japanese military preparations in South Manchuria continue.

TWO HELD AFTER CRASH OF AUTOS

Arrests of James Reed, driving from the west on Mount-st., and Milton Cooper, going south on Scotch-avenue, followed the intersection of the two streets, at noon Sunday, and as a result both were held for questioning.

Reed, who was driving a Buick, was held for questioning after he was found by Officer W. H. Smith, who put up $100 bond for his appearance in May court tonight.

The other of the crash was a Buick, which was found on the lot of Mrs. J. H. Moore. All four tires of the Buick were found during the collision.

USE SEAPLANE AS DIRIGIBLE HUNT STARTS

Report Noble Has Landed In Alaska Believed To Be Unfounded

(BULLETIN)

OSLO, Norway, May 28.—Lieut. Lutzow Holm, star naval aviator, left in a seaplane for Tromsø today to go to the rescue of the stricken dirigible Italia.

Lieut. Holm was accompanied by a mechanic. The plane will join the icebreaking steamer Hobby at Tromsø, and proceed from there to northern Spitzbergen waters.

OSLO, May 28.—Wholly unconfirmed telegram from Kings Bay received at 1:40 p. m. today (7:40 a. m. est) reported that the dirigible Italia had landed in Alaska. The Kings Bay report—the latest of a series of unconfirmed messages, most of which have been proved later to be untrue—was without confirmation from any other source, and gave no indication of its origin.

Out over the northernmost end of the world there flashed by radio today rumors, orders and messages of encouragement in the fight to save the crew of the lost Polar dirigible Italia.

Five and one-half days have elapsed since the airship started on what was to have been a 40-hour excursion over the North Pole.

For two and one-half days there have been no authentic messages from the ship.

Rumors from all over the northern world have been circulated that the Italia has landed. The latest was that it landed in Alaska. Previous ones said it had landed at some unknown destination.

One by one, most of these messages have been proved untrue. They were largely messages from one station to another regarding the Italia, and were misinterpreted by intercepting stations.

A couple of the rumors survived today, still as rumors. None has been authenticated.

The orders flashed out over the radio network in the northern world had to do with the greatest rescue expedition in history.

From Alaska Siberia across Asia and still westward to Alaska, individuals were searching for the Italia or ready to help.

The Italia's base ship Citta Di Milano, that left Kings Bay yesterday on the first rescue expedition, was anchored at Dane's Island, off the northwest coast of Spitzbergen, ready to start a search of the neighborhood and was flashing out at frequent intervals a message to the Italia that help was coming.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, May 28.—Modern and primitive means of transportation were combined today in heroic attempts to find the polar dirigible Italia and her crew of 16 men, now more than 125 hours out of Kings Bay from where she started with a fuel supply for only 72 hours of flying.

Air, water and the hard packed snow of the northland were to be used as trails for the hardy adventurers who have volunteered to go to the rescue of General Umberto Nobile and his countless aides of the Italia.

Meanwhile hour after hour passed with no word of the fate of the dirigible which last week toured over the North Pole and then headed into the Arctic storm that ripped her cover, disabled an engine and finally silenced her radio.

An airplane, steamships and a dog team were ready to set on today in relief attempts as strangely enough for this modern century century civilization of greatest rescue hopes centered in the most primitive mode of travel.

The famed Norwegian hunter Mr. Nobile, who volunteered his services some time ago, will leave with a little group of Eskimos behind him to dog team for the North. They will go to the vicinity of 81 degrees north latitude and be there in 17 and 25 degrees east longitude north of St. Lawrence from where the last known message from Nobile originated. Communications direct from the Italia Friday morning.
